STATE BEARS EXPENSE

Boroughs Can Secure Aid of Commonwealth in Improving Thoroughfare

Charleroi will benefit by the provisions of the new State Highway law if it is so disposed. This law provides that where any road, street or highway within the limits of any borough shall form a part of any State Highway, which is not already improved according to the standard of the State Highway department, the State Highway Commissioner by and with the consent of the borough council, may improve and reconstruct the street at the expense of the State.

This will apply to the Lincoln avenue extension in Charleroi which connects Lincoln avenue with the State road up Maple Creek. This extension is in Route No. 118, of the new plan, from Greensburg to Washington, which passes through Charleroi, by way of Bentleyville on the way to Washington. It was the intention of council to make application for State aid in paving this extension under the provisions of the old Sproul law, which has been repealed. This law provided that where a road improved by the State passed through a borough the latter could also get State aid. Now, under the new law, the State will bear the whole expense of construction if the borough council is willing, and pay 50 per cent of the expense for repairs thereafter.

Eleven of these highways which are to be constructed wholly at the expense of the State enter Washington county. The road for which the commissioners let a contract this spring for improvement between the end of the Maple Creek State road and Bentleyville is said to be in Route No. 118, of the State plan. This was awarded to the Donora Construction company, who are well along with the grading.

FIGHT CAUSED
BY POOL GAME

Burgess George W. Risbeck was required to hear the plaintiffs out of office hours Thursday afternoon when a colored man and a young white man got into an altercation. The trouble arose over a pool game and some vile names are alleged to have been freely dispensed. As a result it cost the colored man $3.85 and the other one $2.85.

Make Trip to Bentleyville
on the Fourth

The Fayette County Automobile Club will make a run on the morning of the Fourth from Uniontown to the Bentleyville Camp Grounds where they will hold a basket picnic. There will be 100 machines, and they expect about 500 persons and at least one-half of this number will be ladies and children. They will arrive at Charleroi about 9:30 a. m. and will come down McKean avenue, up Fifth street to Washington avenue and thence up Maple Creek to Bentleyville. This will give the party time to get some idea of the size of Charleroi.

WORKERS' ANNUAL PICNIC

Tonight at midnight the Imperial Bottle works will close their hand shops for the summer vacation period of two months. Tomorrow the annual picnic of bottle workers will be held at Beechwood park.

During the entire summer the machines will probably run as they did last summer. They will be used in the manufacture of the rougher ware and will not require any of the hand workers. These machines are known as the "Johnny Bull" type and by them are blown and moulded bottles.

The annual picnic of the employees will be held at Beechwood Park. This is an annual feature much anticipated by bottle workers. A program of sports will be carried out.

In the morning there will be a ball game between the amber and flint tanks teams at the ball ground.

A somewhat elaborate program is being arranged by the special committee from the Playgrounds Committee to prepare for the opening of the playgrounds Fourth of July evening. W. A. Swick, superintendent of the playgrounds is chairman of the committee and is looking after the details.

It is likely there will be a parade to the playgrounds, in which children will take part. A band will probably be secured. At the playgrounds the real exercises will take place. The Declaration of Independence will be read and patriotic songs sung under the direction of Prof. I. T. Daniel. A fireworks display will be set off. At the same time a lawn fete and social will be held in an effort to raise funds to carry on playground work.

LOCAL ARMY TO FIGHT

Eldora Park promises to be the center of attraction for the entire Monongahela valley on the Fourth of July when as a special feature a sham war between light infantry and brigades from the upper Monongahela valley will fight a force of Pittsburgh military organizations. Arrangements are now being perfected, and plans are for some of the local companies and possibly some of the Pittsburgh companies to camp out the night preceding the battle and prepare their plans for war.

Capt. Gustave Schaaf of Donora will be commander in chief of the local army, which will include the Charleroi Brigade, the Belle Vernon Rifles, the Brownsville Light Infantry, and a Monongahela company. Competent judges will judge the affair, which will begin at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

On Sunday at the park there will be two balloon ascensions, one in the afternoon at 3 o'clock and another in the evening at 8 o'clock.

PICNIC SUPPER FEATURE

Attended by employees from the various departments of Berryman's store and friends to the number of 43 persons, the annual employee's outing picnic was held at Eldora Park Thursday evening. The affair was one of the best attended and most enjoyed events of the kind ever held by employees of the Berryman firm.

Toothsome picnic delicacies were prepared by the women and the men folks provided ice cream and melons. An elaborate supper was prepared and disposed of. The different amusements of the park were called into requisition for the evening entertainment and they were well patronized. A more happy, jolly crowd was never seen. One unusual feature of the gathering was the presence of the male employees of the store. The scheme of holding a picnic was originated by young women and carried out solely by them heretofore. Others besides the regular sales ladies who were present were J. D. Berryman and family. Jacob Helmstatter and family, Mr. Suter, Charles Clerihue, Thomas Jeffries, Duncan Berryman and Austin Stahlman of the store force Miss Connelly and Mr. Crasson of the S. and H. Premium Parlor and John Lang of Pittsburgh.

At the impossible hour—no not that—just after breakfast Saturday morning there will be an alleged baseball game down at the baseball park between the amber tank workers of the Imperial Bottle plant and the flint tank men. The game is "going" to be a good one. Anyhow it will begin the celebration of the Flint workers outing. Boldie Fontanesi and Carmell will be one battery and J. Stech and P. Sample will form the opposing battery. H. J. Booth, superintendent of the Imperial works will do the umpiring.

Members of the Young Ladies circle of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church entertained their mothers at the church Thursday evening. An annual affair, held in June, the event was most enjoyable. A literary program was rendered in the auditorium. Following the rendition of this program adjournment was taken to the Sunday School room of the church where refreshments were served and a social good time enjoyed. The Sunday school room was a bower of loveliness. Decorations were in yellow and white. The color scheme was also carried out in the cakes and ices. The committee of young ladies who arranged the affair consisted of Miss Nell G. Ryland, Miss Minnie Elliott, Miss Smith, Miss Genevieve Nutt and Mrs. Arthur Miksch.

Now in Force

WATCHING THIS BOROUGH

Charleroi's plan of procedure of both the Business Men's Association and the borough council in working for the common good has attracted attention at the county seat and at least two of the plans in operation here have found supporters. At a recent meeting of the Washington Board of Trade it was suggested that Charleroi's plan of appointing a committee to investigate all stock propositions offered for sale in the community, in order to protect the people from fake schemes be adopted. The Washington people however did not seem in favor of this plan of censorship, and did not adopt it.

Charleroi's plan of making the borough engineer, however, a borough business manager, is being considered by the Washington council, and seems to meet with general favor. The plan is being talked over by the councilmen there and it is thought that the ordinance adopted by the Charleroi council will, with some modifications to suit local requirements, be sooner or later adopted and put into operation of the county seat.

KELLY TO BE ASSISTANT

Several Changes Are Made
In The Official
Force

Along with the closing for an indefinite period of most of factory No. 6, of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company, at Charleroi, the superintendent, Fred Kelley, and assistant superintendent, Fred Kelley, have been transferred to Ford City. Mr. Chandler will assume charge of the plant there, factory No. 5, Saturday. Mr. Kelley will leave Charleroi after the Fourth of July some time. George C. Taylor, superintendent of the Ford City plant and his assistant W. A. Weedon, are transferred to Crystal City, Mo.

Announcement of the change in officials has just been made. Mr. Chandler was in Ford City Thursday to look at the plant returning home to Charleroi the same day. This morning he left here again.

Lee Showers, second assistant of the Charleroi plant at the present time will be left in charge here. Both the Carara department and the department will be continued in operation. The Carara department of the local factory is the only one owned by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company. It is not expected that the suspension locally will be very long according to the statement of officials of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company, but Mr. Chandler and Mr. Kelley will not be brought back here.

WILL REHEARSE
MUSIC TONIGHT

There will be a rehearsal this evening at nine o'clock at the First Presbyterian church of the chorus which will sing at the open meeting of the Adult Federated Bible Classes, to be held at the Methodist Church Sunday afternoon. A NEW FIELD.

Having started a considerable number of bright and ambitious young men on the way to careers of usefulness and interesting work in the line of forestry, Uncle Sam is now giving the same sort of start
to other youths as road engineers—
students of the art and science of building common highways and building them right. The Office of Public Roads, which is a valuable bureau
of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, has adopted the policy
of giving instruction in road construction and maintenance each year to a number of graduate engineers who are appointed to the position of "civil engineer student." Secretary Wilson
in his last report says of them:

"During the first year of their connection with the office they are given a most thorough training in all branches of the work and in many cases are retained as junior highway engineers. The office is in constant receipt of requests from States,
counties, and townships to recommend suitable young engineers to take charge of road improvement. During the last year nine engineers, constituting a very considerable percentage of the total number resigned to take up work in various parts of the office
are handicapped to a certain extent
by this constant drain, the exact purpose of this course of instruction is thereby served in the highest degree.
If a greater number can be appointed
and trained each year, the result will
in time have a very material bearing upon the progress of road improvement. While the object-lesson road is an excellent example, a capable, progressive engineer constitutes an infinitely greater force in the movement
as he should reasonably be expected to go on year after year, adding a set material sense to the efficiency of our road systems.

"There is no doubt that what is almost a new profession, at least for this country, is being opened up through the widespread interest in public roads. It is also a profession with great opportunity for usefulness
and one with fascinating possibilities;
for a good road is a work of art no less than a fine building, and will arouse enthusiasm and give joy no
less keen to the beholder and the user.
It is moreover likely to be a growing profession, as appreciation increases
for the work of constructing and maintaining first class highways. It undoubtedly offers an attractive career to young engineers who have laid the foundation for it in their college studies and who now hesitate
as to what direction to specialize in."

SETTING THE PACE.

That Charleroi is setting the pace
in municipal progressiveness in this section is shown by the readiness with which other boroughs are adopting
the plans outlined and put into execution by Charleroi's progressive council and business people. Charleroi's plan of constituting a borough manager in connection with the office of borough engineer is no sooner adopted than Washington, the county seat, is considering the same plan. A move
on the part of the Charleroi Business
Men's Association to protect the people from fake schemes, was also brought before the Washington Board of Trade for consideration, but was not adopted. This plan is for a committee to investigate all propositions
for selling stock in the town by outside promotion schemes. The Charleroi playgrounds movement, which is the product of both the business people and the council, is attracting widespread attention and other towns in the section are preparing to follow
in the same lines.

From the attention these movements attract it can readily be seen that civic improvements and every movement designed to benefit the community as a whole are of inestimable value to a town. What Charleroi has done in this line thus far has been attained at but a trifling expenditure of money—a mere nothing compared with the big sums which have been blown in during the past in promoting demonstrations, and for which the business men today are not one dollar better off, nor has the town
been benefitted in any way thereby.
Charleroi now has struck the keynote for advancing its welfare, which is to conserve its resources for the common good instead of dissipating them into thin air in order to get a crowd in town for a day which is of no permanent or civic benefit.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

As a relief from the oppressive tarriff pet dogs are to be made duty free which means that society women owning wholly fussy canines can take them along when they go to Europe.

Some people imagine that following the Golden Rule is being either consistently good or consistently bad.
To get wheat in the shock by the Fourth of July is thought to be something quite unusual among farmers.
That being the case there are going to be some unusual stunts done in Washington county this year.

The Wurtemburg preacher who fell from a cherry tree certainly didn't think he was falling from grace.

Mail carriers are sure to receive lighter clothes. Do those lighter clothes include silk socks and lawn shirts?

Why some men wear vests in hot weather is hard to understand.

While they are squabbling about
that "barrel of money" in the Lorimer case, it might be well to bear in mind that if they don't want any of the filthy lucre in that "barrel" there are plenty who are willing to care for it.

Battle is the name of a New York cop. If he lives up to his name he should make an efficient preserver of the peace

"Billy" Sunday has had 3,590 converts at Erie, which is about 3,590 more than the devil intended he should have when he went there.

The Chicago professor who is advocating making divorces easier to secure should first investigate if they could be made cheaper.

Charleroi wouldn't be at home
without a Fourth of July demonstration. Hence the playgrounds opening.

President Taft after two or three trips to Pittsburgh will doubtless be aware of the necessity of bringing an extra collar or so when he makes his next visit.

First Flying Ambulances.
A valued servant and friend of the great Napoleon, Dominique Larrey, first established that system of "flying ambulances," which carried the wounded to the rear almost as soon as disabled. The staff numbered about 840 men with four heavy and twelve light two and four wheeled ambulances to each division. Napoleon reviewed this arm of the service with the greatest interest and once exclaimed to Larrey: "Your work is one of the most important conceptions of our age. It will suffice for your reputation." For the Egyptian campaign Larrey secured the services of 800 qualified surgeons in addition to the regular force. At Alexandria General Figueres was severely wounded, and on his recovery wished to present Napoleon with a splendid Damascus saber. "Yes," said the emperor, "I accept in order to give the surgeon in chief, by whose exertions your life has been spared." This saber, engraved with the words "Aboukir" and "Larrey," was taken from the great surgeon by the Prussians at Waterloo.—Charles Winslow Hall in National Magazine.

The Horrors of Thirst.
In the oasis of Mogura, says L. Dow Corvinton in the Wide World Magazine, we had a first experience of the desert traveler's great enemy—thirst. We were seated in front of a Bedouin chief's tent, our two baby camels enjoying their first drink of water since they had left Cairo, when, from across a sand dune, a Bedouin came staggering and tottering toward us. His eyes were bloodshot, his lips twice their natural size, while his tongue, blue and dry, hung out of his mouth. Evidently he had lost himself, had wandered around for days in search of water and had stumbled upon the oasis in the very nick of time. To allow him to drink would have been his death. In spite of his frantic struggles, he was held by four men, while a fifth allowed a few drops of water to trickle down his throat. It was as though he were a red-hot boiler which would have to be allowed to cool off before being filled if an accident was to be avoided.

Objected to Publicity.
Old Brother Brown had been approached several times by the colored deacons of his church and asked to pay his church dues. He had promised to "pay up" just as soon as he sold a calf which he owned. Several months later he sold the calf. The next Sunday morning at service the congregation sang the old familiar hymn: The calf has never been sold, Of life so full and free.

Brother Brown, somewhat deaf and conscious of his failure to pay his dues, understood the words to be: The calf has never been sold, But when it's sold he'll pay.

When the hymn was finished the old colored man, very indignant, arose and said: "Bredren and sistahs, I has sold dat calf and heh's yo' ten dollahs! But I didn't ca' about de whole ch'urch singin' about it."—National Monthly.

A Costly Tuft of Feathers.
On the apex of the crown worn by the Prince of Wales on special occasions is a curious feather, or, rather, tuft of feathers, the top of which is adorned with a gold thread. The value of this feather is estimated at $50,000, and it has the distinction of being the only one of its kind in human possession. Twenty years passed after the first hunter set out to procure the feather before it was attained, and during that period more than a dozen hunters had lost their lives in the quest. The costly tuft is of periwinkle feathers, and the extraordinary danger incurred in procuring it was due to the fact that the periwinkle, for some unknown reason, is to be found only in dense jungles in which tigers make their lair.—Chicago Tribune.

Turning the Turtle.
Turtle hunting is not without excitement. The method of capture consists of the simple act of turning the turtle on its back. Once in this position it is quite helpless. Its only defense is to cover its cap with sand thrown up by the powerful front legs or flippers. These are brought into action in an instant, and woe betide the captor who has his eyes and mouth open at the moment, for the sand is hurled with great force. When turned over the captive is dragged up the beach to above high water mark, and this is no easy task, for it weighs about four hundredweight.

Premeditated.
"And why do you claim that it was with malice aforethought that the automobile defendant ran down the complainant?"

"On the morning it happened, your honor, I heard him say that he was going to take out his new auto and see if he could not run across a few people he knew."—Houston Post.

"Honest? You surprise me."
"Yes; it's the only honest thing about him. It shows how dishonest he really is."—Life.

Byron In an Ugly Mood.
I have not yet read Byron's "Conversations," but there was an anecdote in one of the extracts which confirms what I heard long since, but which I could not depend on before. He had an aversion to see women eat. Colonel — was at Byron's house in Piccadilly, Lady Byron in the room, and luncheon was brought in—real cutlets, etc. She began eating. Byron turned around in disgust and said, "Gormandizing beast!" and, taking up the tray, threw the whole luncheon into the hall. Lady Byron cried and left the room.—Told by Haydon, the Painter.

A Strange Likeness.
An extraordinary resemblance has recently been discovered at the London Natural History Museum between a specimen of the huge African elephant and the pygmy shrew mouse. Sir E. Ray Lankester suggested comparison of the two, and the result has been that practically every bone, muscle, blood vessel and nerve of the giant beast has been found identically reproduced in the little animal, which is scarcely two inches in length. In the museum a stuffed mouse has been placed between the fore feet of its enormous mounted prototype for the purpose of showing the curious likeness.

Tricking the Bobby.
A Dublin eccentric a short time ago entered a purveyor's shop and bought a ham. Having paid for his purchase, he requested that it should be hung outside the shop door, saying that he would call back for it. The customer then paced up and down outside the shop till a policeman came in sight. And just as the man in blue caught his eye he grabbed the ham and bolted. The constable, however, soon colored the thief, as he thought, and hauled him back to the shop. Having explained the nature of the alleged crime to the shop assistant, he asked the latter to charge the offender.
"But," said the assistant as he realized the joke, "it's his own ham! He was quite at liberty to take it in any circumstances he chose."—London Answers.

Weatherwise Birds and Fish.
The seagull makes a splendid living barometer. If a covey of seagulls fly seaward early in the morning sailors and fishermen know that the day will be fine and the wind fair, but if the birds keep inland, though there be no haze hanging out toward the sea to denote unpleasant weather, interested folk know that the elements will be unfavorable. Of all weatherwise fish the dolphin is the most remarkable. During a fierce gale or a storm at sea the mariner knows that the end of it is near if he can see a dolphin or a number of that fish sporting on the high sea waves.

MAN AND THE WORLD.
A Very Small Graveyard Would Hold the Whole Human Family.
How little mankind signifies in the scheme of nature is shown by a rather morose calculation of the Italian Professor Zuccarini, who has figured out, among other things, that estimating the world's population as 1,500,000,000 the whole human race at present living could stand comfortably shoulder to shoulder in an area of 500 square miles.
Taking the number of generations in the past 6,000 years as 200, the room taken up by them all on the above plan would only be half the size of Germany, or for the sake of comparison less than the area of the state of Colorado. To bury all the people on earth would need a graveyard little larger than that area.
If the dust left by each body be estimated at one-tenth cubic yard, which is a liberal estimate, it would cover only forty square miles to a depth of about three feet. This certainly seems insignificant compared with the great coral reefs and other immense deposits built up by the shell of tiny infusoria.—New York Sun.

A Wetter if Not a Better Man.
A little man in the west of England rushed to the river last summer, swearing loudly that he would drown himself. When he had waded in to the depth of his waist his wife, who had followed him, seized him by the hair, and then, as a local editor described it, she led him back till he reached a place where the water was about two feet deep, where she pulled him over backward and soused him under and pulled his head up again. "Drown yourself (down he went), leaving me to father the brats! (Another plunge.) Get drunk (another souse) and start for the river! (Another dip.) Better use the water instead of rum! (Another dip and shake of the head.) I'll farn ye to leave me a widow!" After sozzling him to her heart's content she led him out a wetter if not a better man and escorted him into the house and closed the door.

The Gordian Knot.
The famous Gordian knot was made of leather taken from some part of the harness belonging to the chariot of Gordius, king of Phrygia. It seems that this knot was so tied that the ends of the leather thong were not visible, hence the difficulty in loosening it. Many must have tried to untie it, for its fame as a "sticker" at last reached the great oracle, which declared that the lucky experimenter should be rewarded by the kingship of Persia. Alexander, trying his hand and meeting with no better success than the others, drew his sword and cut into the knot until he found the end of it.

Coffee was introduced into England in 1652 and within the next ten years became the fashionable drink of London. A few years later, however, in 1663, there was a great uprising against the "oriental beverage of hades." It was satirized on every hand, the bitterest invectives coming from the pulpit. One leading minister characterized it as "the sirup of soot mixed with the essence of old shoes," and another declared that it was "a poison which God had made black that it might bear the devil's own color." This bitter crusade soon wore itself out, and by the time of Charles II. coffee houses were known in every village in the land.

The first recorded comedy was played at Athens B. C. 578, when Susarion and Dolon, the earliest traveling actors, performed a comedy of Susarion's composition on a movable stage mounted upon four wheels. The new form of play was so successful that the actors were rewarded by the grateful populace with a cask of wine and a basket of figs. Susarion belonged to Megaris, a state of ancient Greece, whose inhabitants were celebrated for their coarse humor and who, in their villages during the evenings, were wont to hold what they called a comus, really a revel, in which impromptu acting, coupled with buffoonery, played a considerable part. From this word we have our comedy.

In some ways which might nowadays be called "sentimental" the laws of ancient Wales were in advance of those of today. Mr. J. E. Lloyd in his "History of Wales" mentions that in some of the codes (which were, as a rule, very severe on theft) a remarkable provision exempted from punishment "the starving man who, after begging for three days and receiving nothing, helped himself to the food which he needed in order to keep him alive. That every man had the right to live was a principle of the law, and the sentiment of the country demanded that every person of substance should keep open house not only for ordinary travelers, but also for the destitute and the friendless."

TOMBS OF SAND.

Cape Cod's Treacherous Shoals and the Prey They Grip.

Secrets of the sands of Cape Cod are constantly being disclosed by the sea. In the many storm tides that flood the desolate beaches the hulks of staunch ships lost along the coast on the half hundred miles of beaches between Monomoy at Chatham and Wood End at Provincetown are frequently exhumed from tombs of sand.

Sometimes a wreck appears that has been buried a century or more, as in the case a few years ago of the bones of the British frigate Somerset, whose timbers of oak were disclosed to view back of Provincetown, near the life saving station in Dead Men's Hollow. The Somerset was lost on Peaked Hill bar Nov. 2 or 3, 1778.

Once a vessel is gripped by the sands the process of entombing her goes on with great rapidity, the craft appearing to sink steadily in the yielding beach. All around the doomed vessel the sand piles up in great drifts, like snow. Every crevice of the hull is quickly filled. The sand rises in a solid barrier outside it and flows about it as the tides flood the shelving beaches. Finally it sweeps over the wreck, and the process of entombing goes on until the entombed craft is covered many feet deep.—Boston Globe.

SURE TO BE MISSED.

A Famous Cook's Lament on the Death of His Royal Master.

The most successful book that was published by William Harrison Ainsworth during his first year of business, says Mr. S. M. Ellis in his biography of the English author and publisher, was a cookbook. It was "The French Cook," by Louis Eustache Ude, "the Gilt Blas of the Kitchen."

This unique study of the culinary art brought in a handsome sum to the astute young publisher who had purchased the copyright, and the book was in the hands of every gourmet in London.

Ude had been chef of Louis XVI., of Mme. Letizia Bonaparte and then of the Earl of Sefton, at a salary of 300 guineas a year. At another time he presided over the culinary department of the Crockfords, but his favorite master was Frederick, duke of York. When the royal gormand died his bereaved chef pathetically ejaculated: "Ah, mon pauvre duc, how much you will miss me, wherever you are gone to!"

When leaves fall they are actually cut off from the stems by a layer of cork that forms across the base of their stalks. No nourishment is left in the dead leaf, but only the waste products of vitality, of which the tree is well rid.

Odd Word Survivals.

Far away back in the days when the English language was in its infancy there were poets who wrote of the blossoms on the trees in the spring. They didn't write "blossom," however, but used the word "blow" and made it rhyme with snow and flow. When they wished to sing of the beautiful mass of apple or hawthorn flowers they called it the "blowth." This word is found in the dictionaries, which assert that it is obsolete, but it is very much alive in Rockingham county, N. H., and York county, Me. The orchardist thereabout speaks of a "full blowth" or "light blowth" on his trees in May and predicts a good or poor "set" of the fruit in consequence. "Orts" are supposed to be refuse of some kind, but in the valley where the Piscataqua river mingles with the sea "orts" is the name for "swill"—Exchange.

To Do Good.

You've got to live a Christian life if you expect to do any good. All the preaching in the world won't save a soul if you don't live the life, and if you do you don't need any preaching.—Billy Sunday, Evangelist, Chicago.

Man's Moral Destiny.

More and more the conviction grows that to teach men how to fulfill their moral destiny here is to fit them to fulfill it hereafter and that to do this is to bring down the New Jerusalem from heaven to earth.—Rev. Caleb S. S. Dutton, Unitarian, Brooklyn.

Need of Enthusiasm.

A need in the armament of man in the battle is enthusiasm. It is not only necessary to believe, but one must have the inspiration. Men do not gain fame by chance, but men do gain it by boundless enthusiasm.—Rev. D. G. Downey, Methodist, Chicago.

His Security.

When Eben Foster asked Squire Lane to lend him $200 to invest in the dry goods business the squire dryly inquired what Mr. Foster had to offer him in the way of security.

"Security?" said Eben, with an air of injured dignity. "Well, squire, I'll tell you what I have to offer—three solid silver teaspoons, a handsome brass warming pan, a pair of decalcomany vases, large size, and the material for as much as three feather beds, if not four, right on the backs of my flock o' geese, an' five Plymouth Rock hens."

"You can call 'em all yours till I pay the money back, an' I'll take care of 'em for you free of charge. I don't know what anybody could want more'n that for security."—Youth's Companion.

Ancient Pins.

Pins have been found among the Egyptian mummies and in the prehistoric caves of Switzerland.

The Archbishop's Shirt.

One of the archbishops of Bordeaux, Mgr. de Sangay, was remarkable for his charity, giving to the poor, as he did, nearly everything in his possession. It happened at one time that he was without linen, and when his servants spoke of buying what he needed he put them off, saying always, "We will see about it." Then the good old woman in charge of his wardrobe made use of stratagem. "Monsignore," she said, "I come to ask your charity for a good work." "What is it, my good Jeanne?" "With your lordship's permission, I wish to spend some hours in which I have not much to do in making shirts for a poor old man who is sadly in need of them. Perhaps you would pay me for the stuff. Indeed, the good old man expects as much from you." "With the greatest pleasure," said the archbishop. "Here: this is all the money I have. Take it and get what you need." By this means he was provided with shirts, and he could not refrain from laughing when he learned the explanation of his faithful old servant's request.—London Globe.

The Old Time Senators.

A recent overhauling of a desk in the office of the District of Columbia health officer brought to light a small volume entitled "The Medical Register of the District," which contained a complete list of the senators of the Thirty-ninth congress, giving their weight, height and head and chest measurements. The author of the book, Dr. J. M. Toner, says in explanation of the table:

"It shows that in all the points observed our senators exceed the average of mankind in all parts of the world as well as the average of our own country."

From the figures given it appears that the tallest senators at that time came from Kentucky, the shortest from New Hampshire and West Virginia. The average height was five feet ten and a half inches, and the senatorial heads, "measured a little lower than the hat is generally worn," showed an average circumference of twenty-two and a half inches. Fourteen of the forty senators were six feet tall.—Washington Star.

Travel at Home.

"Whenever I get the wanderlust," says the philosopher, "I get the cook to burn the steak and serve me some coffee that tastes as though it had brown pepper in it. Then I sit in the most uncomfortable chair in the house and try to read a newspaper in a poor light. I then go outdoors and let a cinder blow in my eye, then go back in and go to bed on a cot that is four inches too short and a foot too narrow for me, with covers that gather themselves about my waist and leave my feet bare, while a clever contrivance sends alternate hot and cold blasts across me. Next morning I have indigestion, a sore eye and a cold and a fine assortment of aches and pains, but I also have all the sensations of having been on a trip and am spared the worry of getting home again, for I am already there."—Life.

Bathing in Ancient Times.

The ancient Spartans were very definite as to the right and wrong kinds of bath. A daily dip in the river was permissible, and so was a dry bath in a chamber heated with warm air by means of a stove. But the warm water bath remained a mark of effeminacy, as it had been in Homeric times. No public warm baths were permitted in the vigorous days of early Athens. Antiquity comprises the extremes of practice in this matter of bathing. There were the Dardanians, a Balkan people, who were said to bathe only three times—at birth, at marriage and after death. At the other end of the scale stood the later Roman emperors, with seven or eight baths a day. And they are all dead!—London Graphic.

Two negro men came up to the outskirts of a crowd where a senator was making a campaign speech. After listening to the speech for about ten minutes one of them turned to his companion and asked:

"Who am dat man, Sambo?" "Ah don't know what his name am," Sambo replied, "but he certainly do recommen' hisself mos' highly."—Success Magazine.

PREPARED FOR DEFEAT.

Precautions General Taylor Took Before Meeting Santa Anna.

Santa Anna was the greatest military leader the Mexicans have ever known. Santa Anna, with 25,000 veterans, went into the battle of Buena Vista with the avowed purpose of exterminating the entire army of the United States, and there was no doubt in the mind of Santa Anna that this great feat could be accomplished with comparative ease. General Taylor, with his 5,000 men, prepared for the unequal contest, and not only defended himself successfully, but won a substantial victory from his aggressive antagonists and drove them from the battlefield of Buena Vista.

Some time after the battle was fought and the Mexican war concluded General Taylor was criticised for having made no preparations for the retreat of his army in the event of defeat. General Taylor promptly replied: "I made every preparation necessary for the battle of Buena Vista. I wrote my will, and so did nearly every man in my army. If we had not won that battle we would have needed no lines of retreat. It was, from our standpoint, victory or annihilation. The only preparation necessary for the contingency of defeat at Buena Vista was that we should write our wills."

The American Born Princess.

My father, Prince Napoleon Lucien Charles, was in exile in the United States, and so it happened that I was born in America on the borders of the Delaware. I came into the world with the last sigh of the old year—that is to say, at midnight on the 31st of December, 1833. I have said that my father was in exile. When he was eleven years old his mother left Naples with her four children—two boys and two girls—and retired to the Chateau de Froasdorf, taking the title of Comtesse de Lipona—Napoli transposed. There my father lived till he was joined by his uncle, the Emperor Napoleon's eldest brother, King Joseph of Spain, who on the fall of the first empire had retired to the United States and taken a lovely place near Bordentown, N. J., where he lived for eleven years as Count de Surville. It was at Bordentown that I entered this sorry world, my father having in 1831 married a Miss Carolina Georgina Fraser of Scotch origin, descending from the old family of Lovat.—Princess Caroline Murat's "Memoirs."

A Shock to Vanity.

"My wife gave me a birthday present that has a tendency to take the conceit out of any man who thinks he's good looking," said the man who shaves himself. "I confess that I have all along had a sort of sneaking idea that I had a little more than my share of manly beauty; that when it came to a showdown I was there with the goods. But not any more. I'm cured. And my wife's present did it. What was it? Why, simply one of those shaving glasses that magnify three times. The first time I used it I got a view of my face that rather startled me. Every blemish, every wild hair under the skin, every open pore, all the minute ugliness that isn't apparent to the naked eye—these things confronted me in all their magnified repulsiveness. I used the glass just once and then accidentally dropped it down the air shaft to the basement below. I don't want to look like a monstrosity every time I shave myself."—New York Times.

In Munro's "Homeric Grammar" the author gives a curious turn to his explanation of the Greek word "loumal," which he interprets as "I wash myself, but this is comparatively rare!" Again, Liddell and Scott in their "Standard Lexicon" give the meaning of "gnodalon" as "any wild, dangerous animal, from a lion to a worm!"

In Nagler's "Kunstler Lexikon," a book of reference for a connoisseur of prints, we find: "Pure, Simon. The correct name of the English caricaturist known as George Cruikshank." Evidently some one had told the compiler that of the three of that name George was the real "simon pure."

The Bishop's Opinion.

"The late Bishop Whitaker," said a Philadelphia clergyman, "had very little sympathy with ultra high church leaning. A young divine once said to him at a Lenten lecture, 'Bishop, suppose I should burn a few pastilles during the service, do you think anything would happen?'"

"Bishop Whitaker smiled dryly, and, passing his hand down his white beard, he answered:

"A good deal would happen, my young friend. Your congregation would be incensed, your vestrymen would fume, and it's more than likely that you yourself would go up in smoke."

The Family Cat.

"Under normal conditions," says Chicago's health commissioner, "all the epidemic and local diseases thrive upon the family cat. The woman who refuses to give her child a redhot poker as a toy has no hesitancy in putting into its arms the most dangerous plaything—the family cat. It is no difficult matter to quarantine the child sick with scarlet fever or diphtheria, but the family cat goes where it pleases and comes when it likes."

The Bloodletting Branch.

Not every man is as good as one credited to a Dublin gentleman of long ago by the author of a book entitled "In Many Lands." George IV., on his visit to Dublin in 1821, met at a reception Sir Philip Crampton, Ireland's greatest surgeon.

"In what branch of the service is that magnificent looking man?" asked his majesty.

"The gentleman to whom the question was put was too polite to hint that the king was mistaken in supposing that the distinguished surgeon was a naval or military officer."

Limit For a Friend in Need.

A friend in need is a good thing sometimes, but I always make the limit $5.

AFTER 7 YEARS SUFFERING

I Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Waurika, Okla.—"I had female troubles for seven years, was all run down, and so nervous I could not do anything. The doctors treated me for different things but did me no good. I got so bad that I could not sleep day or night. While in this condition I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and began its use and wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. In a short time I had gained my average weight and am now strong and well."—Mrs. SALLIE STEVENS, R. F. D., No. 3, Box 31, Waurika, Okla.

Another Grateful Woman.

Huntington, Mass.—"I was in a nervous, run down condition and for three years could find no help."

"I owe my present good health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier which I believe saved my life."

"My doctor knows what helped me and does not say one word against it."—Mrs. MARI JANETTE BATES, Box 134, Huntington, Mass.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, and nervous prostration.

LUTHERANS BEAT METHODISTS IN EIGHT INNINGS

Hot Warfare Waged by Bottom and Top Teams for Game

BUTZ GETS WINNING RUN

It took an extra inning to decide the warfare between the Lutherans and Methodists at the ball lot Thursday evening and if it hadn't been for it, they would have been playing yet. But it was in the way, and thus it came about that the Lutherans, pennant aspirants, leaders in the league, Joe Mason's bunch and other things too numerous to mention, hung onto the extra score needed to win.

There were only five scores made during the whole affair. The Methodist got two of these five, and got them before the Lutherans could get a man in sight of home plate. With two out in the first Protin broke his batting average of three lonely ciphers all to smithereens and pulled off a beautiful double. Peter Bege, erstwhile pitcher, captain and general all around everybody, singled and Protin trotted in. Next inning Binns hit one into left field near the line. The ding-busted ball got lost in the grass, and while Wertz, Mason and others were trimming their lamps looking for the same, Binns went the entire distance.

Butz for the Lutherans was safe on an error in the third with two down. On the same diddings he went to second and scored on Coach Joe's single. Next sitting Brother Charles Mason hit an easy one down the third base line. Sharkey sacrificed. Motts struck out. Fleming thereupon doubled scoring Brother Charles and the score was tied.

Butz first up in the eighth for the Lutherans, after the Methodists had gone out regularly, banged one for three bases. Joseph Mason, Esq., was given a free pass by Hurler Pollock and started on a walk to second. Pollock in an attempt to watch Joseph and at the same time keep Butz from scoring threw the ball to second and it was not relayed in time to catch the latter at the plate. Score:

BASEBALL BINGLES

On July 4 it's going to cost everybody 10 cents to go to the games. Women will be charged the same as the men.

Protin got his initial hit of the Church season. To say it was a daisy is not to say too much.

Mathias was back on the umpires' job Thursday night. His presence rather puts a stop to any "phulin."

Butz displayed enough ability on second base to entitle him to a regular job on as good a team as State college can produce.

Excuse us for disputing, Mister Byland, but we are inclined to believe that your decision on the first when a throw was made to catch Protin was a little rare. He looked as safe as the United States Treasury.

Heaton, with the exception of a peculiar piece of business trying to catch Wertz on the third out at the plate, played a good game on short.

Allegheny High School Fleming shone in the outfield. He shone so brightly that he became a qualified star.

There is no regularly scheduled game for Monday and a game is being arranged between a Pricedale team and some church league stars.

Pollock twirled a mighty good game. He deserves great credit.

Miller after pitching a one hit game the night before pitched a three hit game the next night.

The following has been handed to the Bingles author: "To the Umpire: Would you kindly ask the captains to announce changes in field positions. It not only puzzles the spectators when unannounced changes are made but it is likewise probable that annoying mixups will result."

UNIVERSITY OF FRANCE.

Essentially the Same Today as When Established by Napoleon.

In the United States there are many universities which are free from state control, but in France there is only one university, and it is an absolute instrument of the state. It is true that there are schools of higher learning, which were founded in 1870 as universities, but five years afterward the title was withdrawn, and they are now called "instituts." They are five in number and are located in Paris, Lille, Lyons, Toulouse and Angers.

But the University of France is an entirely different organization. It is the official school. It is centralized in Paris and has under it a vast multitude of establishments, faculties, colleges and primary schools, distributed over the whole surface of the country. Directly or indirectly they all depend on the government.

The university was established by Napoleon, and in spite of certain modifications which it has undergone during years it is the same today in its essential elements as the day he founded it. Just as he established the entire civil administration, with its prefects, subprefects, judges, ministers of finance, so he created in 1807 this vast educational organization, with its countless professors who control the entire intellectual training France—America.

Entertaining Royalty.

Nothing puts a bigger feather in the cap of a society hostess, says the London Saturday Journal, or at the same time causes her more anxious cares and thought than more expenditure than the presence at one of her dinners or dances in the huge Mayfair mansion of a member of the royal family—most of all the king and queen. The entertaining of royalty is one of the most delicate triumphs of a society woman, whether she be a duchess or merely a millionairess, can achieve. It has a code of etiquette, all to itself—a code which must be rigidly observed or no help is there of ever securing another visit from a royal guest of the reigning house. The number of titled and untitled guests invited to meet the sovereign at, say, a dinner party is strictly limited and of course highly select. On one occasion $20,000 was spent by a hostess in entertaining a crowned head for a week end, while another example is that of a certain baronet who had a marble staircase put in his house solely because of an approaching visit from the late king.

Thrifty.
Agent—Now, please state what conditions you require on the part of the lady. Suitor—A pleasant exterior, 20,000 marks dowry, domestic training and 6½ size gloves. Agent—May I ask why you fix upon the last named condition? Suitor—Well, you see, a few years ago I won six pairs of ladies' gloves, 6½ size, in an exhibition lottery, and you can't expect me to throw them away.

The History of Interest.
By "usury" the ancient teachers meant any interest that was exacted by the lender of money from the borrower solely as the price of the loan. Those who lent money at 3 per cent, or even 1 per cent, were committing usury quite as really as those who lent it at 40 per cent. The old time prejudice against interest was based on the theory, at one time quite universal, that "money is sterile by nature" and that, therefore, to exact profit from it is both absurd and unjust. For centuries pretty nearly all the authorities in church and state were committed to such idea, and it was not until quite recent times that the old error was exploded.—New York American.

Manganese and Its Uses.
Manganese is one of the substances which had long been used in the arts before its existence as an independent metal was recognized. From prehistoric times it was employed as a coloring material, but it was not known to be a distinct metal until 1774. In India the primitive smiths used it as a flux and as an alloy for holding iron and bronze. Today its power as an oxidizer, rendering it a most important disinfectant, and its value as a chemical reagent, as well as its increasing use as an alloy, caused an active search to be made for its ores. It is widely distributed, forming about one-thousandth of the substance of the earth's crust.

Whelks as Money.
Dewarra, a currency of New Britain, is an instance of how the spoils of the chase may be turned to account as the outward and visible sign of wealth. Dewarra is made by stringing the shells of a dog whelk upon the ribs of palm leaves. These strings may be retailed at so much a fathom—usually the price is equivalent to about 3 shillings a fathom length—or they may be made into various articles of personal adornment to be worn on great occasions. In New Britain the dewarra hoarded up by a rich man is produced at his funeral and divided among his heirs in much the same kind of way as personal property is divided among us.—London Globe.

ADOLPH BEIGEL

PLAYGROUND GAMBOLS

Mister Kicker, you who are opposed to the borough spending money to maintain the playgrounds at "The Pines," take a look. If the happy, care free children who are swinging, sliding, turning on the horizontal bars and rings, playing in the sand piles and on the ball fields isn't argument enough to convince you of the wisdom of the movement, then you ought to be taxed double your present assessment to maintain the reform schools, the workhouses, the jails and prisons, which the absence of playgrounds has helped to establish.

Although not yet formally opened, the playgrounds in "The Pines" is swarming with children. Many swings have been erected, as well as see-saws, horizontal bars, rings, slides and sand piles, which are kept busy all hours of the day. Arc lights and toilet rooms have been erected, and more equipment and conveniences will be installed later. Prof. W. A. Swick, who is in charge as superintendent and instructor, is busy organizing and directing operations, and every child is safe from imposition on the part of the older ones.

A wire line divides the grounds to separate the boys from the girls. While this separation has not yet been enforced, as soon as the grounds are fully equipped it will be regulated for the best interests of all.

Already many parents go to the grounds and sit beneath the trees to watch their children as well as the others enjoy themselves in the open. An hour or two spent there in the heat of the day affords a delightful recreation, especially for the busy housewife or mother.

Some of the mothers should provide their daughters with bloomers. The horizontal bar provides many attractions for the young girls, and the proper costume would not only add to the enjoyment of the losses, but would develop physical culture and health.

Prof. Swick preserves order and decorum as in the school room. A quarrelsome child is immediately banished from the grounds, and can only return on promises of good behavior.

As yet all the children are not "next" to the playgrounds, particularly those from the lower end of town. It is hoped that all will avail themselves of the privileges to enjoy themselves. Parents can feel perfectly safe in regard to their children so long as they are at "The Pines."

THE SMALLEST LOAF.

There once lived an old baker who was very fond of children. Often he would play pleasant surprises for them. One day he invited a large number of girls and boys to come to his bakery shop. To each child as he walked down the street the old baker said, "Well, my child, can you come to my bakery at 4 o'clock?"

At 4 o'clock a large crowd had gathered. The children felt sure he had some pleasant surprise for them. They were not disappointed, for there was a large basket filled with nice, fresh loaves of bread. How the children pushed and scrambled for them!

Among the crowd was a little girl. She was so small that she did not wish to scramble into the crowd, but stood quietly aside. After the children had each snatched a loaf and run gleefully away she stepped up to the basket and took the first loaf. It was very small.

She thanked the baker and ran home with it. When she cut it out fell a brand new gold piece. Thinking there had been a mistake, she ran back to tell the baker.

"No," said the baker, "there is no mistake. I put it into the smallest loaf. It is yours."

How "Thon" Would Work.

"Thon" is the word which has been suggested for use as an English pronoun of common gender, a luxury which the English language has thus far had the fortitude to forego. It was considered suitable for English because it came from the Greek. Its use may be illustrated as follows:

If a parent desires to spank thon (his or her, as the case may be) child thon (he or she) should take thon (him or her) to across thon's knee. Then thon should remove thon's slipper, and after explaining to the child the reprehensibility of thon's conduct thon should apply the slipper to that portion of thon's anatomy which from time immemorial has been dedicated to that purpose.

It may easily be seen from the above how "thon" effects great clarification. Lippincott's.

"You hear so many people talking of 'the pace that kills.' I wonder what they mean exactly?"

Without a Doubt.

An Occurrence.

A great globe ornamented with the map of the earth carved in stone decorates the estate of an eccentric Englishman at Swanage. It stands overlooking the sea and is visible for quite a distance. One may walk about it and study it in detail. The plain surfaces, such as the oceans, lakes and deserts, are decorated with Scriptural texts which are supposed to apply especially to the locality they occupy.

CHARLEROI MAY BENEFIT BY STATE HIGHWAY LAW

Will Apply to Lincoln Avenue Extension by New Plan

STATE BEARS EXPENSE

Boroughs Can Secure Aid of Commonwealth in Improving Thoroughfare

Charleroi will benefit by the provisions of the new State Highway law if it is so disposed. This law provides that where any road, street or highway within the limits of any borough shall form a part of any State Highway, which is not already improved according to the standard of the State Highway department, the State Highway Commissioner by and with the consent of the borough council, may improve and reconstruct the street at the expense of the State. This will apply to the Lincoln avenue extension in Charleroi which connects Lincoln avenue with the State road up Maple Creek. This extension is in Route No. 118, of the new plan, from Greensburg to Washington, which passes through Charleroi, by way of Bentleyville on the way to Washington. It was the intention of council to make application for State aid in paving this extension under the provisions of the old Sproul law, which has been repealed. This law provided that where a road improved by the State passed through a borough the latter could also get State aid. Now, under the new law, the State will bear the whole expense of construction if the borough council is willing, and pay 50 per cent of the expense for repairs thereafter.

Eleven of these highways which are to be constructed wholly at the expense of the State enter Washington county. The road for which the commissioners let a contract this spring for improvement between the end of the Maple Creek State road and Bentleyville is said to be in Route No. 113, of the State plan. This was awarded to the Donora Construction company, who are well along with the grading.

CHARLEROI PLAN WELL CONSIDERED

Washington May Adopt Engineer Scheme Now in Force

WATCHING THIS BOROUGH

Charleroi's plan of procedure of both the Business Men's Association and the borough council in working for the common good has attracted attention at the county seat and at least two of the plans in operation here have found supporters. At a recent meeting of the Washington Board of Trade it was suggested that Charleroi's plan of appointing a committee to investigate all stock propositions offered for sale in the community, in order to protect the people from fake schemes be adopted. The Washington people however did not seem in favor of this plan of censorship, and did not adopt it. Charleroi's plan of making the borough engineer, however, a borough business manager, is being considered by the Washington council, and seems to meet with general favor. The plan is being talked over by the councilmen there and it is thought that the ordinance adopted by the Charleroi council will, with some modifications to suit local requirements, be sooner or later adopted and put into operation of the county seat.

A NEW FIELD.

Having started a considerable number of bright and ambitious
young men on the way to careers of usefulness and interesting work in a line of forestry. Uncle Sam is now giving the same sort of start
to other youths as road engineers—
students of the art and science of
building common highways and building them right. The Office of Public Roads, which is a valuable bureau
of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, has adopted the policy
of giving instruction in road construction and maintenance each year to a number of graduate engineers who
are appointed to the position of "civil engineer student." Secretary Wilson
in his last report says of them:

"During the first year of their connection with the office they are given
a most thorough training in all branches of the work and in many cases are retained as junior highway
engineers. The office is in constant
receipt of requests from States,
counties, and townships to recommend
suitable young engineers to take charge of road improvement. During the last year nine engineers, constituting a very considerable percentage
of the total number resigned to take up work in various parts of the office
are handicapped to a certain extent
by this constant drain, the exact purpose of this course of instruction is thereby served in the highest degree.
If a greater number can be appointed
and trained each year, the result will
in time have a very material bearing
upon the progress of road improvement. While the object-lesson road is an excellent example, a capable, progressive engineer constitutes an infinitely greater force in the movement
as he should reasonably be expected to go on year after year, adding a material sense to the efficiency of our

"There is no doubt that what is almost a new profession, at least for this country, is being opened up
through the widespread interest in public roads. It is also a profession
with great opportunity for usefulness;
and one with fascinating possibilities;
for a good road is a work of art no
less than a fine building, and will arouse enthusiasm and give joy no
less keen to the beholder and the user.
It is moreover likely to be a growing
profession, as appreciation increases
for the work of constructing and maintaining first class highways. It undoubtedly offers an attractive career to young engineers who have laid the foundation for it in their college studies and who now hesitate
as to what direction to specialize in."

SETTING THE PACE.

That Charleroi is setting the pace
in municipal progressiveness in this section is shown by the readiness with which other boroughs are adopting
the plans outlined and put into execution by Charleroi's progressive council and business people. Charleroi's plan of constituting a borough manager in connection with the office of
borough engineer is no sooner adopted
than Washington, the county seat, is considering the same plan. A move
on the part of the Charleroi Business
Men's Association to protect the people from fake schemes, was also brought before the Washington Board
of Trade for consideration, but was not adopted. This plan is for a committee to investigate all propositions
for selling stock in the town by outside promotion schemes. The Charleroi playground movement, which is the product of both the business people and the council, is attracting widespread attention and other towns in
the section are preparing to follow
in the same lines.

From the attention these movements
attract it can readily be seen that
civic improvements and every movement designed to benefit the community as a whole are of inestimable value to a town. What Charleroi has done in this line thus far has been attained at but a trifling expenditure
of money—a mere nothing compared with the big sums which have been blown in during the past in promoting demonstrations, and for which
the business men today are not one dollar better off, nor has the town
been benefitted in any way thereby.
Charleroi now has struck the keynote
for advancing its welfare, which is
to conserve its resources for the common good instead of dissipating them
into thin air in order to get a crowd in town for a day which is of no permanent or civic benefit.

Some people imagine that follow-

consistently good or consistently bad.

To get wheat in the shock by the

thing quite unusual among farmers.
That being the case there are going
to be some unusual stunts done in Washington county this year.

Why some men wear vests in hot

While they are squabbling about
that "barrel of money" in the Lor-

mind that if they don't want any of
the filthy lucre in that "barrel" there are plenty who are willing to cave for it.

Charleroi wouldn't be at home base for the New York Giants. Davis has been an umpire for ten years in various minor leagues. He has been noted for his eccentricities.

"Davis was umpiring a game for us in the latter part of the season," says Willis. "He didn't stand any too well with the fans, and didn't seem to care. He began umpiring behind the bat and then worked behind the pitcher. The crowd kicked on a second base decision, and he took his stand behind second base. Finally there was a dispute about a foul ball hit down the right field line, and Davis took his position in right field.
Then the bleacherites went at him.

"Why don't you stand where you can judge balls and strikes, you stiff?"
yelled one.

"Well," said Davis, "you guys can umpire a game from the right field seats and never make a mistake. Why can't I umpire as well in right field?"
The bleacherites chased him after the game, and Davis beat it through the back gate. He never did come back to the grounds."

First Flying Ambulance.
A valued servant and friend of the great Napoleon, Dominique Larrey, first established that system of "flying ambulances," which carried the wounded to the rear almost as soon as disabled. The first ambulance about 1840 men with four heavy and twelve light two and four wheeled ambulances to each division. Napoleon reviewed this arm of the service with the greatest interest and once exclaimed to Larrey: "Your work is one of the most important conceptions of our age. It will suffice for your reputation." For the Egyptian campaign Larrey secured the services of 800 qualified surgeons in addition to the regular force. At Alexandria General Figueres was severely wounded, and on his recovery wished to present Napoleon with a splendid Damascus saber. "Yes," said the emperor, "I accept in order to give it the surgeon in chief, by whose exertions your life has been spared." This saber, engraved with the words "Aboukir" and "Larrey," was taken from the great surgeon by the Prussians at Waterloo—Charles Winslow Hall in National Magazine.

The Horrors of Thirst.
In the oasis of Mogara, says L. Dow Corington in the Wide World Magazine, we had a first-hand experience of the desert traveler's great enemy—thirst. We were seated in front of a Bedouin chief's tent, our two baby camels enjoying their first drink of water since they had left Cairo when, from across a sand dune, a Bedouin came staggering and tottering toward us. His eyes were bloodshot, his lips twice their natural size while his tongue, blue and dry, hung out of his mouth. Evidently he had lost himself, had wandered around for days in search of water and had stumbled upon the oasis in the very nick of time. To allow him to drink would have been his death. In spite of his frantic struggles, he was held by four men, while a fifth allowed a few drops of water to trickle down his throat. It was as though he were a red-hot boiler which would have to be allowed to cool off before being filled if an accident was to be avoided.

Objected to Publicity.
Old Brother Brown had been approached several times by the colored deacons of his church and asked to pay his church dues. He had promised to "pay up" just as soon as he sold a calf which he owned. Several months later he sold the calf. The next Sunday morning at service the congregation sang the old familiar hymn: "The calf has never been sold, Of life so full and free." Brother Brown, somewhat deaf and conscious of his failure to pay his dues, understood the words to be: "The calf has never been sold, But when it's sold he'll pay." When the hymn was finished the old colored man, very indignant, arose and said: "Bredren and sistahs, I has sold dat calf and heh's yo' ten dollars! But I didn't ex' about de whole ch'ch singin' 'bout it."—National Monthly.

A Costly Tuft of Feathers.
On the apex of the crown worn by the Prince of Wales on special occasions is a curious feather, or, rather, tuft of feathers, the top of which is adorned with a gold thread. The value of this feather is estimated at $50,000, and it has the distinction of being the only one of its kind in human possession. Twenty years passed after the first hunter set out to procure the feather before it was attained, and during that period more than a dozen hunters had lost their lives in the quest. The costly tuft is of porcupine feathers, and the extraordinary danger incurred in procuring it was due to the fact that the porcupine, for some unknown reason, is to be found only in dense jungles in which tigers make their lair.—Chicago Tribune.

Turning the Turtle.
Turtle hunting is not without excitement. The method of capture consists of the simple act of turning the turtle on its back. Once in this position it is quite helpless. Its only defense is to cover its cap with sand thrown up by the powerful front legs or flippers. These are brought into action in an instant, and woe betide the captor who has his eyes and mouth open at the moment, for the sand is hurled with great force. When turned over the captive is dragged up the beach to above high water mark, and this is no easy task, for it weighs about four hundredweight.

Premeditated.
"And why do you claim that it was with malice aforethought that the automobile defendant ran down the complainant?"
"On the morning it happened, your honor, I heard him say that he was going to take out his new auto and see if he could not run across a few people he knew."—Houston Post.

A Giddy Girl.
"Is your daughter of a practical turn of mind?"
"No; she is very frivolous. Wants to take cooking lessons instead of perfecting her game of bridge."—Exchange.

His Honest Face.
"Anyway, he has an honest face."
"Honest? You surprise me."
"Yes; it's the only honest thing about him. It shows how dishonest he really is."—Life.

Byron in an Ugly Mood.
I have not yet read Byron's "Conversations," but there was an anecdote in one of the extracts which confirms what I heard long since, but which I could not depend on before. He had an aversion to see women eat. Colonel — was at Byron's house in Piccadilly. Lady Byron in the room, and luncheon was brought in—real cutlets, etc. She began eating. Byron turned around in disgust and said, "Gormandizing beast!" and, taking up the tray, threw the whole luncheon into the hall. Lady Byron cried and left the room. Told by Haydon, the Painter.

MAN AND THE WORLD.
A Very Small Graveyard Would Hold the Whole Human Family.
How little mankind signifies in the scheme of nature is shown by a rather morose calculation of the Italian Professor Zaccarini, who has figured out, among other things, that estimating the world's population as 1,500,000,000, the whole human race at present living could stand comfortably shoulder to shoulder in an area of 500 square miles.

Taking the number of generations in the past 6,000 years as 200, the room taken up by them all on the above plan would only be half the size of Germany, or for the sake of comparison less than the area of the state of Colorado. To bury all the people on earth would need a graveyard little larger than that area.

If the dust left by each body be estimated at one-tenth cubic yard, which is a liberal estimate, it would cover only forty square miles to a depth of about three feet. This certainly seems insignificant compared with the great coral reefs and the immense deposits built up by the shell of tiny infusoria.—New York Sun.

Coffee was introduced into England in 1652 and within the next ten years became the fashionable drink of London. A few years later, however, in 1683, there was a great uprising against the "oriental beverage of hades." It was satirized on every hand, the bitterest invectives coming from the pulpit. One leading minister, characterized it as "the sirup of soot mixed with the essence of old shoes," and another declared that it was "a poison which God had made black that it might bear the devil's own color." This bitter crusade soon wore itself out, and by the time of Charles II, coffee houses were known in every village in the land.

TOMBS OF SAND.

Cape Cod's Treacherous Shoals and the Prey They Grip.

Secrets of the sands of Cape Cod are constantly being disclosed by the sea. In the many storm tides that flood the desolate beaches the hulks of staunch ships lost along the coast on the half hundred miles of beaches between Monomoy at Chatham and Wood End at Provincetown are frequently exhumed from tombs of sand.

Sometimes a wreck appears that has been buried a century or more, as in the case a few years ago of the bones of the British frigate Somerset, whose timbers of oak were disclosed to view back of Provincetown, near the life saving station in Dead Men's Hollow. The Somerset was lost on Peaked Hill bars Nov. 2 or 3, 1778.

Once a vessel is gripped by the sands the process of entombing her goes on with great rapidity, the craft appearing to sink steadily in the yielding beach. All around the doomed vessel the sand piles up in great drifts, like snow. Every crevice of the hull is quickly filled. The sand rises in a solid barrier outside it and flows about it as the tides flood the shelving beaches. Finally it sweeps over the wreck, and the process of entombing goes on until the entombed craft is covered many feet deep.—Boston Globe.

SURE TO BE MISSED.

A Famous Cook's Lament on the Death of His Royal Master.

The most successful book that was published by William Harrison Ainsworth during his first year of business, says Mr. S. M. Ellis in his biography of the English author and publisher, was a cookbook. It was "The French Cook," by Louis Eustache Ude, "the Gil Blas of the kitchen."

This unique study of the culinary art brought in a handsome sum to the astute young publisher who had purchased the copyright, and the book was in the hands of every gourmet in London.

Ude had been chef of Louis XVI, of Mme. Letizia Bonaparte and then of the Earl of Sefton, at a salary of 300 guineas a year. At another time he presided over the culinary department of the Crookfords, but his favorite master was Frederick, duke of York. When the royal gourmand died his bereaved chef pathetically ejaculated: "Ah, mon pauvre duc, how much you will miss me, wherever you are gone to!"

When leaves fall they are actually cut off from the stems by a layer of cork that forms across the base of their stalks. No nourishment is left in the dead leaf, but only the waste products of vitality, of which the tree is well rid.

Odd Word Survivals.

Far away back in the days when the English language was in its infancy there were poets who wrote of the blossoms on the trees in the spring. They didn't write "blossom," however, but used the word "blow" and made it rhyme with snow and dew. When they wished to sing of the beautiful mass of apple or hawthorn flowers they called it the "blowth." This word is found in the dictionaries, which assert that it is obsolete, but it is very much alive in Rockingham county, N. H., and York county, Me. The orchardist thereabouts speaks of a "full blowth" or "light blowth" on his trees in May and predicts a good or poor "set" of the fruit in consequence. "Orts" are supposed to be refuse of some kind, but in the valley where the Piscataqua river mingles with the sea "orts" is the name for "swill"—Exchange.

to Do Good.

You've got to live a Christian life if you expect to do any good. All the preaching in the world won't save a soul if you don't live the life, and if you do you don't need any preaching.—Billy Sunday, Evangelist, Chicago.

Man's Moral Destiny.

More and more the conviction grows that to teach men how to fulfill their moral destiny here is to fit them to fulfill it hereafter and that to do this is to bring down the New Jerusalem from heaven to earth.—Rev. Caleb S. S. Dutton, Unitarian, Brooklyn.

Need of Enthusiasm.

A need in the armament of man in the battle is enthusiasm. It is not only necessary to believe, but one must have the inspiration. Men do not gain fame by chance, but men do gain it by boundless enthusiasm.—Rev. D. G. Downey, Methodist, Chicago.

His Security.

When Eben Foster asked Squire Lane to lend him $200 to invest in the dry goods business the squire dryly inquired what Mr. Foster had to offer him in the way of security.

"Security?" said Eben, with an air of injured dignity. "Well, squire, I'll tell you what I have to offer—three solid silver teaspoons, a handsome brass warming pan, a pair of decalcomany vases, large size, and the material for as much as three feather beds, if not four, right on the backs o' my flock o' geese, an' five Plymouth Rock hens."

"You can call 'em all yours till I pay the money back, an' I'll take care of 'em for you free of charge. I don't know what anybody could want more'n that for security."—Youth's Companion.

Ancient Pins.

Pins have been found among the Egyptian mummies and in the prehistoric caves of Switzerland.

The Archbishop's Shirts.

One of the archbishops of Bordeaux, Mgr. de Saugny, was remarkable for his charity, giving to the poor, as he did, nearly everything in his possession. It happened at one time that he was without linen, and when his servants spoke of buying what he needed he put them off, saying always, "We will see about it." Then the good old woman in charge of his wardrobe made use of stratagem. "Monsignore," she said, "I come to ask your charity for a good work." "What is it, my good Jeanne?" "With your lordship's permission, I wish to spend some hours in which I have not much to do in making shirts for a poor old man who is sadly in need of them. Perhaps you would pay me for the stuff. Indeed, the good old man expects as much from you." "With the greatest pleasure," said the archbishop. "Here: this is all the money I have. Take it and get what you need." By this means he was provided with shirts, and he could not refrain from laughing when he learned the explanation of his faithful old servant's request.—London Globe.

The Old Time Senators.

A recent overhauling of a desk in the office of the District of Columbia health officer brought to light a small volume entitled "The Medical Register of the District," which contained a complete list of the senators of the Thirty-ninth congress, giving their weight, height and head and chest measurements. The author of the book, Dr. J. M. Toner, says in explanation of the list:

"It shows that in all the points observed our senators exceed the average of mankind in all parts of the world as well as the average of our own country."

From the figures given it appears that the tallest senators at that time came from Kentucky, the shortest from New Hampshire and West Virginia. The average height was five feet ten and a half inches, and the senatorial heads, "measured a little lower than the hat is generally worn," showed an average circumference of twenty-two and a half inches. Fourteen of the forty senators were six feet tall.—Washington Star.

Travel at Home.

"Whenever I get the wanderlust," says the philosopher, "I get the cook to burn the steak and serve me some coffee that tastes as though it had brown pepper in it. Then I sit in the most uncomfortable chair in the house and try to read a newspaper in a poor light. I then go outdoors and let a cinder blow in my eye, then go back in and go to bed on a cot that is four inches too short and a foot too narrow for me, with covers that gather themselves about my waist and leave my feet bare, while a clever contrivance sends alternate hot and cold blasts across me. Next morning I have indigestion, a sore eye and a cold and a fine assortment of aches and pains, but I also have all the sensations of having been on a trip and am spared the worry of getting home again, for I am already there."—Life.

Bathing in Ancient Times.

The ancient Spartans were very definite as to the right and wrong kinds of bath. A daily dip in the river was permissible, and so was a dry bath in a chamber heated with warm air by means of a stove. But the warm water bath remained a mark of effeminacy, as it had been in Homeric times. No public warm baths were permitted in the vigorous days of early Athens. Antiquity comprises the extremes of practice in this matter of bathing. There were the Dardanians, a Balkan people, who were said to bathe only three times a year, at marriage and after death. At the other end of the scale stood the later Roman emperors, with seven or eight baths a day. And they are all dead!—London Graphic.

Two negro men came up to the outskirts of a crowd where a senator was making a campaign speech. After listening to the speech for about ten minutes one of them turned to his companion and asked:

"Who am dat man, Sambo?" "Ah don' know what his name am," Sambo replied, "but he certainly do recommen' hisself mos' highly."—Success Magazine.

PREPARED FOR DEFEAT.

Precautions General Taylor Took Before Meeting Santa Anna.

Santa Anna was the greatest military leader the Mexicans have ever known. Santa Anna, with 25,000 veterans, went into the battle of Buena Vista with the avowed purpose of exterminating the entire army of the United States, and there was no doubt in the mind of Santa Anna that this great feat could be accomplished with comparative ease. General Taylor, with his 5,000 men, prepared for the unequal contest, and not only defended himself successfully, but won a substantial victory from his aggressive antagonists and drove them from the battlefield of Buena Vista.

Some time after the battle was fought and the Mexican war concluded General Taylor was criticised for having made no preparations for the retreat of his army in the event of defeat. General Taylor promptly replied: "I made every preparation necessary for the battle of Buena Vista. I wrote my will, and so did nearly every man in my army. If we had not won that battle we would have needed no lines of retreat. It was, from our standpoint, victory or annihilation. The only preparation necessary for the contingency of defeat at Buena Vista was that we should write our wills."

The American Born Princess.

My father, Prince Napoleon Lucien Charles, was in exile in the United States, and so it happened that I was born in America on the borders of the Delaware. I came into the world with the last sigh of the old year—that is to say, at midnight on the 31st of December, 1833. I have said that my father was in exile. When he was eleven years old his mother left Naples with her four children—two boys and two girls—and retired to the Chateau de Froisdorf, taking the title of Comtesse de Lipona—Napoli transposed. There my father lived till he was joined by his uncle, the Emperor Napoleon's eldest brother, King Joseph of Spain, who on the fall of the first empire had retired to the United States and taken a lonely place near Bordentown, N. J., where he lived for eleven years as Count de Surville. It was at Bordentown that I entered this sorry world, my father having in 1831 married a Miss Carolina Georgina Fraser of Scotch origin, descending from the old family of Lorat.—Princess Caroline Murat's "Memoirs."

A Shock to Vanity.

"My wife gave me a birthday present that has a tendency to take the conceit out of any man who thinks he's good looking," said the man who shaves himself. "I confess that I have all along had a sort of sneaking idea that I had a little more than my share of manly beauty; that when it came to a showdown I was there with the goods. But not any more. I'm cured. And my wife's present did it. What was it? Why, simply one of those shaving glasses that magnify three times. The first time I used it I got a view of my face that rather startled me. Every blemish, every wild hair under the skin, every open pore, all the minute ugliness that isn't apparent to the naked eye—these things confronted me in all their magnified repulsiveness. I used the glass just once and then accidentally dropped it down the air shaft to the basement below. I don't want to look like a monstrosity every time I shave myself."—New York Times.

In Munro's "Homeric Grammar" the author gives a curious turn to his explanation of the Greek word "louonai," which he interprets as "I wash myself, but this is comparatively rare." Again, Liddell and Scott in their "Standard Lexicon" give the meaning of "gnodalon" as "any wild, dangerous animal, from a lion to a worm!"

In Nagler's "Kunstler Lexikon," a book of reference for a connoisseur of prints, we find: "Pure, Simon. The correct name of the English caricaturist known as George Cruikshank." Evidently some one had told the compiler that of the three of that name George was the real "simon purr."

The Bishop's Opinion.

"The late Bishop Whitaker," said a Philadelphia clergyman, "had very little sympathy with ultra high church leaning. A young divine once said to him at a Lenten lecture, 'Bishop, suppose I should burn a few pastilles during the service, do you think anything would happen?'"

"Bishop Whitaker smiled dryly, and, passing his hand down his white beard, he answered: 'A good deal would happen. my young friend. Your congregation would be incensed, your vestrymen would fume, and it's more than likely that you yourself would go up in smoke.'"

The Family Cat.

"Under normal conditions," says Chicago's health commissioner, "all the epidemic and local diseases thrive upon the family cat. The woman who refuses to give her child a redhot poker as a toy has no hesitancy in putting into its arms the most dangerous plaything—the family cat. It is no difficult matter to quarantine the child sick with scarlet fever or diphtheria, but the family cat goes where it pleases and comes when it likes."

The Bloodletting Branch.

Not every pun is as good as one credited to a Dublin gentleman of long ago by the author of a book entitled "In Many Lands." George IV., on his visit to Dublin in 1821, met at a reception Sir Philip Crampton, Ireland's greatest surgeon.

"In what branch of the service is that magnificent looking man?" asked his majesty.

The gentleman to whom the question was put was too polite to hint that the king was mistaken in supposing that the distinguished surgeon was a naval or military officer.

"Sire," he replied, "he is a general in the lancets."

AFTER 7 YEARS SUFFERING

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Waurika, Okla.—"I had female troubles for seven years, was all run down, and so nervous I could not do anything. The doctors treated me for different things but did me no good. I got so bad that I could not sleep day or night. While in this condition I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and began its use and wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. In a short time I had gained my average weight and am now strong and well."—Mrs. SALLIE STEVENS, R. F. D., No. 2, Box 51, Waurika, Okla.

Another Grateful Woman. Huntington, Mass.—"I was in a nervous, run down condition and for three years could find no help. I owe my present good health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier which I believe saved my life."

"My doctor knows what helped me and does not say one word against it."—Mrs. MAH J. JANETTE BATES, Box 134, Huntington, Mass.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, and nervous prostration.

LUTHERANS BEAT METHODISTS IN EIGHT INNINGS

Hot Warfare Waged by Bottom and Top Teams for Game

BUTZ GETS WINNING RUN

It took an extra inning to decide the warfare between the Lutherans and Methodists at the ball lot Thursday evening and if it hadn't been for it, they would have been playing yet.

But it was in the way, and thus it came about that the Lutherans, pennant aspirants, leaders in the league, Joe Mason's bunch and other things too numerous to mention, hung onto the extra score needed to win.

There were only five scores made during the whole affair. The Methodist got two of these five, and got them before the Lutherans could get a man in sight of home plate. With two out in the first Protin broke his batting average of three lonely ciphers all to smithereens and pulled off a beautiful double. Peter Bege, erstwhile pitcher, captain and general all around everybody, singled and Protin trotted in. Next inning Binns hit one into left field near the line. The ding-busted ball got lost in the grass, and while Wertz, Mason and others were trimming their lamps looking for the same, Binns went the entire distance.

Butz for the Lutherans was safe on an error in the third with two down. On the same diddings he went to second and scored on Coach Joe's single. Next sitting Brother Charles Mason hit an easy one down the third base line. Sharkey sacrificed. Motts struck out. Fleming thereupon doubled scoring Brother Charles and the score was tied.

Butz first up in the eighth for the Lutherans, after the Methodists had gone out regularly, banged one for three bases. Joseph Mason, Esq., was given a free pass by Hurler Pollock and started on a walk to second. Pollock in an attempt to watch Joseph and at the same time keep Butz from scoring threw the ball to second and it was not relayed in time to catch the latter at the plate. Score:

BASEBALL BINGLES

On July 4 it's going to cost everybody 10 cents to go to the games. Women will be charged the same as the men.

Protin got his initial hit of the Church season. To say it was a daisy is not to say too much.

Mathias was back on the umpires' job Thursday night. His presence rather puts a stop to any "phulin."

Butz displayed enough ability on second base to entitle him to a regular job on as good a team as State college can produce.

Excuse us for disputing, Mister Byland, but we are inclined to believe that your decision on the first when a throw was made to catch Protin was a little rare. He looked as safe as the United States Treasury.

Heaton, with the exception of a peculiar piece of business trying to catch Wertz on the third out at the plate, played a good game on short.

Allegheny High School Fleming shone in the outfield. He shone so brightly that he became a qualified star.

There is no regularly scheduled game for Monday and a game is being arranged between a Pricedale team and some church league stars.

Pollock twirled a mighty good game. He deserves great credit.

Miller after pitching a one hit game the night before pitched a three hit game the next night.

The following has been handed to the Bingles author: "To the Umpire: Would you kindly ask the captains to announce changes in field positions. It not only puzzles the spectators when unannounced changes are made but it is likewise probable that annoying mixups will result."

UNIVERSITY OF FRANCE.

Essentially the Same Today as When Established by Napoleon.

In the United States there are many universities which are free from state control, but in France there is only one university, and it is an absolute instrument of the state. It is true that there are schools of higher learning, which were founded in 1870 as universities, but five years afterward the title was withdrawn, and they are now called "institutes." They are five in number and are located in Paris, Lille, Lyons, Toulouse and Angers.

But the University of France is an entirely different organization. It is the official school. It is centralized in Paris and has under it a vast multitude of establishments, faculties, college and primary schools, distributed over the whole surface of the country. Directly or indirectly they all depend on the government.

The university was established by Napoleon, and in spite of certain modifications which it has undergone during years it is the same today in its essential elements as the day he founded it. Just as he established the entire civil administration, with its prefects, subprefects, judges, ministers of finance, so he created in 1808 this vast educational organization with its countless professors, who control the entire intellectual training of France—America.

Entertaining Royalty.

Nothing puts a bigger feather in the cap of a society hostess, says the London Saturday Journal, or at the same time causes her more anxious cares and thought, rather than mere expenditure than the presence at one of her dinners or dances in the huge Mayfair mansion of a member of the royal family—most of all the king and queen. The entertaining of royalty is one of the most delicate triumphs the society woman, whether she be a duchess or merely a millionaire, can achieve. It has a code of etiquette all to itself—a code which must be rigidly observed or no hope is there of ever securing another visit from a royal guest of the reigning house. The number of titled and untitled guests bidden to meet the sovereign at, say, a dinner party is strictly limited and of course highly select. On one occasion $20,000 was spent by a hostess in entertaining a crowned head for a week end, while another example is that of a certain baronet who had a marble staircase put in his house solely because of an approaching visit from the late king.

Thrifty.
Agent—Now, please state what conditions you require on the part of the lady. Suitor—A pleasant exterior, 20,000 marks dowry, domestic training and 6½ size gloves. Agent—May I ask why you fix upon the last named condition? Suitor—Well, you see, a few years ago I won six pairs of ladies' gloves, 6½ size, in an exhibition lottery, and you can't expect me to throw them away.

PLAYGROUND GAMBOLS

Mister Kicker, you who are opposed to the borough spending money to maintain the playgrounds at "The Pines," take a look. If the happy, care free children who are swinging, sliding, turning on the horizontal bars and rings, playing in the sand piles and on the ball fields isn't argument enough to convince you of the wisdom of the movement, then you ought to be taxed double your present assessment to maintain the reform schools, the workhouses, the jails and prisons, which the absence of playgrounds has helped to establish.

Although not yet formally opened, the playgrounds in "The Pines" is swarming with children. Many swings have been erected, as well as see-saws, horizontal bars, rings, slides and sand piles, which are kept busy all hours of the day. Arc lights and toilet rooms have been erected, and more equipment and conveniences will be installed later. Prof. W. A. Swick, who is in charge as superintendent and instructor, is busy organizing and directing operations, and every child is safe from imposition on the part of the older ones.

A wire line divides the grounds to separate the boys from the girls. While this separation has not yet been enforced, as soon as the grounds are fully equipped it will be regulated for the best interests of all.

Already many parents go to the grounds and sit beneath the trees to watch their children as well as the others enjoy themselves in the open. An hour or two spent there in the heat of the day affords a delightful recreation, especially for the busy housewife or mother.

Some of the mothers should provide their daughters with bloomers. The horizontal bar provides many attractions for the young girls, and the proper costume would not only add to the enjoyment of the losses, but would develop physical culture and health.

Prof. Swick preserves order and decorum as in the school room. A quarrelsome child is immediately banished from the grounds, and can only return on promises of good behavior.

As yet all the children are not "next" to the playgrounds, particularly those from the lower end of town. It is hoped that all will avail themselves of the privileges to enjoy themselves. Parents can feel perfectly safe in regard to their children so long as they are at "The Pines."

THE SMALLEST LOAF.

Story of a Generous Baker and a Modest Little Girl.

There once lived an old baker who was very fond of children. Often he would play pleasant surprises for them. One day he invited a large number of girls and boys to come to his bakery shop. To each child as he walked down the street the old baker said, "Well, my child, can you come to my bakery at 4 o'clock?"

At 4 o'clock a large crowd had gathered. The children felt sure he had some pleasant surprise for them. They were not disappointed, for there was a large basket filled with nice, fresh loaves of bread. How the children pushed and scrambled for them!

Among the crowd was a little girl, she was so small that she did not wish to scramble into the crowd, but stood quietly aside. After the children had each snatched a loaf and run gleefully away she stepped up to the basket and took the first loaf. It was very small.

She thanked the baker and ran home with it. When she cut it out fell a brand new gold piece. Thinking there had been a mistake, she ran back to tell the baker.

"No," said the baker, "there is no mistake. I put it into the smallest loaf. It is yours."

How "Thon" Would Work.

"Thon" is the word which has been suggested for use as an English pronoun of common gender, a luxury which the English language has thus far had the fortitude to forego. It was considered suitable for English because it came from the Greek. Its use may be illustrated as follows:

If a parent desires to spank thon (his or her, as the case may be) child thon (he or she) should take thon (him or her) to across thon's knee. Then thon should remove thon's slipper, and after explaining to the child the reprehensibility of thon's conduct thon should apply the slipper to that portion of thon's anatomy which from time immemorial has been dedicated to that purpose.

It may easily be seen from the above how "thon" effects great clarification.—Lippincott's.

The Pace.

"You hear so many people talking of 'the pace that kills.' I wonder what they mean exactly?"

"Well, it depends. There's the messenger boy's pace, for instance. That merely kills time."—Philadelphia Press.

Without a Doubt.

Dubbins—Do you know where I can find a lot facing south? Stabblins—Why not try around the north pole? That's a very likely place.—Exchange.

The Feminine of It.

Teacher—Tommy, what is the feminine of the masculine "stag"? Tommy (whose mother is a society leader)—Afternoon tea, ma'am.—Sphinx.

Thoughts are mightier than the strength of hand.—Sophocles.

The History of Interest.

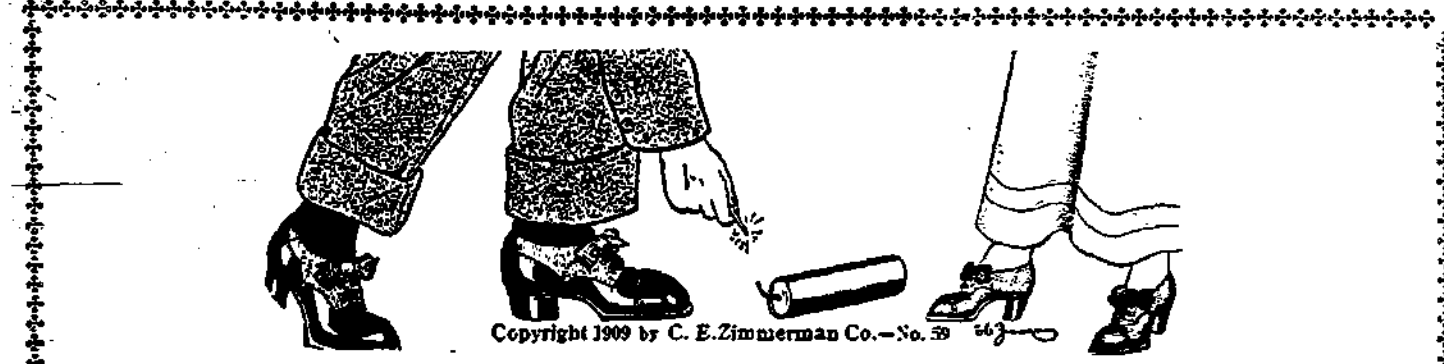

By "usury" the ancient teachers meant any interest that was exacted by the lender of money from the borrower solely as the price of the loan. Those who lent money at 3 per cent, or even 1 per cent, were committing usury quite as really as those who lent it at 40 per cent. The old time prejudice against interest was based on the theory, at one time quite universal, that "money is sterile by nature" and that, therefore, to exact profit from it is both absurd and unjust. For centuries pretty nearly all the authorities in church and state were committed to such idea, and it was not until quite recent times that the old error was exploded.—New York American.

Manganese and Its Uses.

Manganese is one of the substances which had long been used in the arts before its existence as an independent metal was recognized. From prehistoric times it was employed as a coloring material, but it was not known to be a distinct metal until 1774. In India the primitive smiths used it as a flux and as an alloy for holding iron and bronze. Today its power as an oxidizer, rendering it a most important disinfectant, and its value as a chemical reagent, as well as its increasing use as an alloy, caused an active search to be made for its ores. It is widely distributed, forming about one-thousandth of the substance of the earth's crust.

Wheels and Money.

Dewarra, a currency of New Britain, is an instance of how the spoils of the chase may be turned to account as the outward and visible sign of wealth. Dewarra is made by stringing the shells of a dog wheel upon the ribs of palm leaves. These strings may be retailed at so much a fathom—usually the price is equivalent to about 3 shillings a fathom length—or they may be made into various articles of personal adornment to be worn on great occasions. In New Britain the dewarra hoarded up by a rich man is produced at his funeral and divided among his heirs in much the same kind of way as personal property is divided among us.—London Globe.
